FOREIGN TRADE OF COOPERATIVES; Statistical Supplement

By Henry W. Bradford and Richard S. Berberich

This is a companion report to FSC Information 88, Foreign Trade of Cooperatives. Its 44 tables give additional statistical data on cooperatives' exports and imports of agricultural commodities and farm supplies in fiscal years 1968, 1969, and 1970.

There are 11 tables for each year that show trade by countries and commodity groups, and 11 additional tables for only fiscal year 1970 that show trade by States and commodity groups. The commodity groups are:

Animals and animal products
Cotton and cotton linters
Feeds and fodders
Fruits and preparations
Grains and preparations
Oilseeds and products
Vegetables and preparations

As in the basic report, exports are classified as "direct" when cooperatives sold the commodities or farm supplies overseas. They are classified as "indirect" when cooperatives sold the items to other U.S. firms or organizations which took title to them and negotiated the overseas sales. The same classification system applies to imports.

How to interpret the tables

Data for each country importing from cooperatives are given first with a subtotal to show number of cooperatives exporting; direct sales, indirect sales, and total exports; total U.S. exports; and cooperatives' share. Note that the number of cooperatives exporting is not a sum obtained by adding the number of cooperatives exporting to each country.

88-5, 79p, FEB 1973.

Frequently one cooperative exported to several countries. This subtotal tells the number of different cooperatives involved.

Countries receiving cooperative exports are followed by a listing of other countries in the area that received substantial U.S. exports, and then a total for all countries in that area. The figures given for cooperative share of all U.S. exports are averages for all countries.

In some instances, cooperatives were unable to specify the destination for part of their exports. Value of these exports was included in the categories "Country not given" or "Area not given."

Some cooperative agricultural commodities may have been transshipped to other countries, especially in the case of Canada, the Netherlands, and Belgium. No attempt was made to determine the extent of such transshipments.

Information in all the commodity group tables is organized in the same manner. Thus, the reader can study the detail for the commodities and countries that interest him most.

Tables relating to exports and imports of farm supplies and to imports of agricultural commodities follow a similar pattern. However, they do not include the co-op share by countries or areas.

The following example is given to facilitate use of the tables. Let's say you want to know how much grain cooperatives exported to Japan in 1970. Turn to Table 5, page 11. This shows that Japan received grain from four cooperatives valued at $109 million—$97 million by direct export and $12 million by indirect sale. U.S. exports to Japan totaled $473 million. Of that amount, cooperatives supplied 20 percent by direct export, 3 percent by indirect sale, and 23 percent of the total.

The subtotal line shows that six different cooperatives exported to the 11 Asian countries listed and that their share of U.S. exports to this group of countries averaged 35 percent by direct export, 4 percent by indirect sale, and a total of 39 percent.

None of the cooperatives, however, exported grain to four other Asian countries that imported large quantities from the United States—South Vietnam, $123 million; Indonesia, $93 million; Saudi Arabia, $22 million; and Ceylon, $11 million. The co-op share to all Asian countries (See total line in table) averaged 28 percent by direct export, 3 percent by indirect sale, and 31 percent of the total.

Tables 34 through 44 show foreign trade by States and commodity groups for fiscal year 1970. Figures in these tables represent trade by association headquarters. They do not necessarily mean that all products exported originated in the listed States or that all products imported were utilized in the States listed.

Producers Grain Corporation of Amarillo, Texas, is a pioneer in cooperative-to-cooperative foreign trade. PGC has been trading directly with Japan's Zenkoren and its successors Zen-Noh and UNICOOPJAPAN since 1967. At the time this picture was made, in 1968, a Norwegian tanker was loading 2 million bushels of grain sorghum. She was the largest vessel to load grain at Corpus Christi and was on her maiden voyage.
